Washkaron, May 4.—It seems now that the Savannah revenue collectorship fight is to be settled at last. Collector Pleasants got into trouble last December and the official announcements then looked to his instant discharge. A. N. Wilson came on to Washington in Pleasants's interest. He has worked for him untiringly ever since. The rush for Pleasant's place was an advantage to him, as the various candidates were constantly attacking each other before the departments. Jesse Wimberly of Waynesboro, W. L. Clark of Atlanta, and Rev. W. J. White, colored, of Savannah, were the most prominent applicants for the position. Wimberly remained here several months looking after his interests. Secretary Folger has time and again stated that the appointment was about to be made, but for various reasons it was delayed. It was at last decided to retain Pleasants in the office provided he could make an acceptable.

An effort will be made at once to shelve Pledger with Pleasants, and to put S. W. Postell in his place at the Atlanta custom house. He said the jury had been in court over 5 months, one seventieth of an average human life time. His business had been drifting along like a ship without a rudder, and moreover he feared that if the trial were spun out much further it would be brought to a close by th leath or sickness of some of the jury. Judge Wylie assured Mr. Crane that the trial was afforded by the adjournment over Saturday. Court then adjourned over to Monday.

ing of the air with gossip of scandal the par ty most deeply affected by the terrible trag-edy has almost escaped notice. This is poor MRS DAVIS, THE WIDOW of the murdered man. Her home is in the suburban part of the town, near the noted training stables of her brother-in-law, Crit-tenden Davis. The house is a pretty frame cottage in the middle of a ten-acre lot of pas-ture land, dotted here and there with poplar trees. The home of Walter Davis bore evidence that he was a man of cultivated, though quiet tastes. It was an ambition of his to make his home beautiful and comfortable. Mrs. Davis lay on a couch, with her mother and a sympathizing neighbor sitting by her side. She is a delicate little woman, refined in feature, and nervous of temperament. The shock had been almost too much for her. Her love for her children was her great tower of strength in the dread-ful trial. In a gentle manner she protested that justice had not been done her husband—"as good, loyal, kind and noble a husband as ever woman had," she moaned. "Oh! why did Phil rob me of him?" she piteously asked. It was pathetic to see how this woman asserted, over and over again, her immovable trust in the honor of her husband. Her mother insisted that Mrs. Davis should know the worst of the affidavits. After they had been stated to her, she said she had heard before what they cortained. that justice had not been done her husband had been stated to her, she said she had heard before what they contained.

"ITWAS ALL A CONCOUTED LIE!"

She vebemently asserted, and then a forrent of passionate indignation came over her, she laying all her misfortunes at the feet of the beautiful Miss Jessie Buckner. When she got calm again, she said, "Miss Buckner threatened to have her revenge on me, and God knows she has kept her promise." Mrs. Davis, time and again, declared that there had never been a shadow between her and her husband. On the night before he started for Chicago he had made the fond remark to her that in his domestic relation he was the happiest band. On the night before he started for Chicago he had made the fond remark to her that in his domestic relation he was the happiest man in the world. (She said he was not a drinking man. As for Mrs. Thompson, she had never seen her drunk, although she had heard that she drark sometimes. She believed Mrs. Thompson to be a good, pure woman, and she (Mrs. Davis) could have no possible objection to her husband taking her to the theater when he met her in another city, as they were intinate.

She went on to say, 'for he had teld his wife that when she wahted money during his wife that when she wahted money during his wife that when she wahted money during his mise that Blackburn, Thompson's congressional colleague, arrived to-night to help defend his friend. An interesting circumstance is that Blackburn prosecuted the Thompson in the other Davis affair. Voorhees is expected.

e End of a Bruta) and Hearliess Murder-The Murderer Speaks on the Scaffold and Tells a Whining Story of His Innocence-Ha Charges ine Murder to His Companion.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn , May 4 -D. F. Walker,

the murderer of Samuel S. Hardberger on Sand mountain, November 6, 1882, was executed at Trenton to-day in the presence of about 3,000 people. Preparations for the event had been made the day before, and every precaution was made to prevent any accident. The scaffold was about eight feet high and the gallows eight feet from the platform. At 12:30 the wagon containing the criminal sitting on his coffin, surrounded by twenty-five armed men, left the jail and proceeded slowly to the scaffold, Walker talking pleasantly on the way to the sheriff by his side. When they arrived at the scaffold the doomed man walked steadily and without a show of fear or trembling up the scaffold steps. He then asked to be allowed to talk, and Sheriff Boyd told him he could talk for an hour if he desired. accident. The scaffold was about eight feet talk for an hour if he desired. talk for an hour if he desired. Thereupon he arose and in a clear and distinct voice said: "Gentlemen, ladies and friends, I feel it my duty to tell the truth at this solemn hour, so that all may know that for which I die. I am charged with killing old man Hardberger, and a jūry has said that I did kill him, and that I ought to suffer death for it. Now, my friends, I say here, in my dying moments, that I did not do the killing. I was present and knew of it, but I did not fire the fatal shot. I know I am bound to die in a few minutes, and I do am bound to die in a few minutes, and I not want to offend my God by telling a lie in His presence. I never thought of robbing the old man, as God is my judge. Treece killed him, and if there was any robbery he robbed him, and I have been sacrificed by the lawyers to save Treece's neck. My friends, it is money that is hanging me, and it is money that set Treece free, and I say that the people of Dade county in justice to themselves and to their dying fellow-man ought not to allow this—they ought not to allow this great evil. I deplore, oh my God! I hate to think that I leave my wife and God! I hate to think that I leave my wire and children in disgrace; and, my friends, if you have any mercy, never fling it in her face. The man is a coward who would do it, and when I think of my wife and children and old man Hardberger's wife and children, then I think of Treece, and I ask you what ought to be done with the man who would make them both widows and their children orphans?

both widows and their children orphaus? Ought he to live? No, I don't believe he ought, and I do not believe you will let him live. A voice in the crowd, "Yes, and if you say it is justice to you he shant live." "I say it frankly if Treece was up here to die with me I would die better satisfied."

At this point he made several statements implicating one Lish Smith, and said that he had been warned against Smith. He called several persons to the platform who corroborated his statements. Then resuming his talk. minetation to start to-morrow morning in pursuit of the savages in accordance with the treaty.

A decision has just been stronger to the treasury department which finally disposes of the long pending question whether the government of the United States has any title to certain lands in Fernandina, Florida, which were sold for direct taxes in 1863. He then deliberately fixed the rope, held his arms to be tied, and helped to fix the black cap. While all this was being done he talked incessantly to the crowd, dwelling persistently on the injustice of hanging him and turning Treece loose. He spoke feelingly of the kindly services and friendship of Mr. John Jacoway, the prosecuting attorney of the different way, the prosecuting attorney, of the different officers and others who had shown him kindness during his imprisonment. He dropped precisely at 1:37 and was cut down at 1:57, having hung and was cut down at 1:37, having hung twenty minutes. The body was removed to the grand jury room in the courthouse, where it will remain until to morrow and probably be buried in Trenton. No disorder was in the crowd, there being but little drunkenness, the guards having inspired the lawless with respect. The scene was very affecting at the hotel where the wife of the unfortunate man was stopping, and whom he really seemed to love as fondly as his nature would admit. She fainted once or twice, and considerable alarm was entertained for her life. Walker was considered a passionate, willful and desperate man, though he dened a character. There was but one feeling in the crowd, and that was that Walker de served the fate, and there was a universa feeling that Treece ought to die with him.

when quite young he married and lived very unhappily with his wife. She died very suddenly and the mysterious manner of her death led to a general suspicion that Walker had murdered her. About a year after the death of his first wife he won the affections of a woman far his superior in every respect. She was well born, cultivated and beautiful. She loved Walker blindly and though her father told her that he had rather see her dead than his wife, she resolved to marry him, and one day met Walker near her father's house. He had a buggy ready and dashed away. The father of the girl soon heard of the elopement and started in hot pursuit. He gained on Walker and at length came in sight of him and ordered him to stop. Walker, when the old man was near to him, rose in his buggy and deliberately fired at him. The ball entered his right thigh and the wound disabled him for life. The woman clung to Walker with a blind devotion. They were duly married and the father disowned his child forever. life. The woman clung to Walker with a blind devotion. They were duly married and the father disowned his child forever. Soon after this second marriage Walker became involved in a difficulty with one of his neighbors and killed him. This caused him to fly from Mississippi and settle at the foot of Sand Mountain. He seemed not to care about doing anything and made no effort to intimacy sprang up between Walker and Treece and they frequently took long excursions together in search of game.

The neighborhood was not long in learning Walker's true character. His roving, worthless life and his brutal neglect of his family merited and won the contempt of all who knew him. He was engaged in several rows and was suspected of more than one crime and several misdemeanors.

crime and several misdemeanors.

Early last October he consulted Treece about a plan he had made to throw a considerable pile of money into both their hands, as he said. Treece caught at the bait, and had no moral scruples to keep him from any means that might be necessary to carry out the design. Through the country about Sand mountain there frequently travelled a man named Elisha Smith who traded in cattle. He was known to carry a good sum of money with was known to carry a good sum of money with him always, and he was the victim Walker selected. He pictured to Treece how easy it would be to kill Smith, get his money, hide his body and let no one be the wiser therefor. The conspirators ascertained when Smith would be through that region and knew the road he would take from Sand mountain to-ward Trenton. In a dense wood close to the road they concealed themselves and awaited the coming of the doomed man. Treece had his rifle and Walker was doubly armed with both rifle and reaches.

A sharp report rang out. Treece had fired first. Whether the ball took effect or not is uncertain, but when Treece fired, Hardberger turned and raising his hands cried: "For God's sake don't kill me!" The words were his last. Walker rose and aiming as coolly as if he were shooting an ox, sent a rifle ball into the breast of his pleading victim. Not content with seeing Hardberger fall he drew his revolver and fired at fail he drew his revolver and fired at his prostrate form once or twice. The assassins had waited in vain for

The assassins had waited in vain for Reese. Night was coming on and all hope of getting him was gone. They had wrought themselves up to murderous resolution and were ready to kill anybody. Hardberger came along. He looked respectable and was well dressed. Walker, in a moment after he saw him, told Treece he must be "their man." When they had shot him down they rushed out to rifle his pockets. Their search brought out $4.65 as the price of a human life.

The murderers had hidden their victim from the eyes of the world, but they could not keep their secret. Preece showed signs of trouble, world, but they could not keep their secret. Treece showed signs of trouble, Walker was worse and avowed to various persons that he had killed a man at a game of cards, but had done so in self defense. Meantime Hardberger's failure to reach Rising Fawn had aroused inquiry. His family were written to and asked of his whereabouts. They became alarmed and made every possible search to no effect. More than a week after the murder the circling buzzards guided some farmers to what remained of the unfortunate man. The corpse was in a horrible state of decomposition. A coroner's inquest was held. Walker and Treece were summoned as witnesses. Treece made a clean moned as witnesses. Treece made a clean breast of his guilt but declared he had been dragged into it by Walker, whom he feared to oppose or disobey after the plot had been broken to him. He told of all the plan to asassinate Reese and how Hardberger was put in his place, though neither had ever seen him before. He declared that he had intentionally missed Hardberger and that only Walker's balls had taken effect. During this confession Walker was livid with rece and said something about "making it During this confession Walker was hived with rage and said something about "making it night" with Treece. The murderers were arrested and put in jail. They were tried at the March term of Dade court. Walker was ably defended by Colonel W. H. Dabney and J. T. Lumpkin. NOTSO CRAZY AFTER ALL. Western Man's Communication to Governor Boys

From the Hawkinsville, Ga., Dispatch.

The acting governor of Georgia has received from an alleged crazy man in the west a communication declaring that Georgia is in a fearful condition financially and morally and that it has been brought about by bad whisky and bad fertilizers. The papers say that the communication was turned over to Judge Henderson, the commissioner of agriculture, who replied to it in strong language. We are sorry for this. It shows an effort and an intention on the part of our state government to repress the truth. Mean whisky and poor fertilizers have contributed vastly to retard the state in its moral growth and prosperity. The author of the communication may really be "a crank," as is alleged, but it is an old saying that "fools and children tell the truth." We believe the fellow should be invited to visit Georgia and address the legislature at its July session on and that it has been brought about by bad address the legislature at its July session on the subjects of usury and the dog law. We want somebody to explain for the benefit of the legislature why a merchant has a right to sell a farmer a cask of a thousand pounds of bacon for one hundred and fitty dollars, payable the 15th of October, and take a mortgage with homestead waiver upon the man's farm, while another farmer can buy the same cask of bacon for one hundred and ten dollars in cash. Pay-day comes within six months from the day of the sale of the bacon, and yet the credit purchaser is compelled to pay forty dollars for the use of one hundred and ten dollars for six months. Yet a banker or private capitalist cannot, without violating the law, loan money for more than eight per cent interest.

The legislator has never fairly considered the question of usury, or he would entertain a different view of the matter.

As the law now stands, it is hard to borrow money, but the farmer can get all the guano and goods he wants on time by paying an interest of forty to sixty per cent.

Yankee Breastworks.

From the Sandersville, Ga., Herald. A military company of colored men has seen organized here recently with Noah ohnson, the mail carrier, as captain. If var was imminent with some foreign power and an early call for troops probable, the for-mation of such companies would not be ob-jectionable, as the southern whites have had bout enough of war, and if the colored peo ole should feel their breasts aglow with nilitary enthusiasm, and long to deck their prows with laurels won from bloody battleields, then when the tocsin of war is sounded neigs, then when the toosin of war is sounded they should be allowed a chance to air their patriotism, and gallantly rushing to the front seek the bubble reputation in the cannon's mouth. It was said, with what degree of truth we know not, that in the late war the ide-awake yankee in some of the latter bat es made breastworks of the colored troops keeping them in front even at the point of the bayonet, and it may turn out that war's cruel scourge again may befall the land, and then the chivalrous colored man may again be utilized as breastworks against the foe. At present, however, we think colored men could serve themselves and their families better by attending to their farms or their various occupations.

A. J. Slater, a white man who has been confined in our county jail for some months, in default of the payment of a fine, has turned his wits in many ways in amusing himself.

Among other things he has turned artist, and has drawn an excellent likeness of Garfield from a picture of him in an illustrated paper; he has also drawn a very good likeness of himself. Besides this he has been taming the rats about the jail, and had them so they would come when he called them and eat out of his hand A few days ago a man with a fancy rat terrier induced the prisoner to deliver up his pets for the dog to practice upon.

BUSH'S PALACE.

ARCHITECTURE IN OUR STATE of the Early Champions of Methodism, More Than Seventy Five Years Ago.

From the Greensboro, Ga., Home Journal On the left hand side of the public roa coming towards Greenesboro, and only a short distance from the famous camp ground of Liberty, stands a large, two-story house, somewhat weather-beaten and bearing the marks of time. This house bears a history, and a history that reads well in these later days of rush and rapidity.

The building was begun in 1801 by a man named Bush and was not completed until two years afterwards, or in 1803. The building of this house bankrupted Bush, and shortly before its completion he disappeared, probably to avoid arrest and imprisonment for the debt with which the structure had saddled

At the time of its completion it was one of the handsomest buildings in Georgia, and al-though eighty years have passed over it, it still stands firm as rock, age and time appear-ing to add to its strength. It is oblong in structure, with a massive brick chimney at either end. The eaves, the window case-ments and door fronts are fringed with a chain of ornamental woodwork of a beautiful design, wrought entirely by hand.

In design, wrought entirely by hand.

The weather boarding, the sleepers and sills are all of the heaviest timber, and appear today as sound and substantial as when hewn. Inside the rooms are panelled with carved wainscoating and corniced in the same manner as the exterior. The mantles and stairways door facings, ceilings, all show ways, door facings, ceilings, all show ornamentation of like design. One can but marvel at the time, the patience, and the labor expended on this dwelling, and at the substantial manner in which it was built. A year was consumed laying the foundation alone, the sleepers being of seasoned chestnut about fourteen inches square and running the entire length of the house. After Bush's departure the house went into the hands of the chief creditors: it was then pur chased by John S. Jackson and was sold by him to Obadiah Copelan. The present owner, Johnson P. Kimbrough, next purchased it, and it is now occupied by O. G. Copelan and his family. his family.

"Bush's," as this house was called during the years closely following its erection, was known far and near, and the fame of the then palatial residence went abroad, and visitors who came were always sure of a hospita ble welcome from the genial host.

On the 26th of December, 1808, was held in this house an annual session of the South Carolina conference of the Methodist denomination. Methodism was, at that time, in an almost chaotic state, but bright minds and earnest workers were championing the cause. In the northeast chamber, up stairs, of Bush's, was held one of the most important conferences the church had yet held. Present at this conference was Bishop William McKen-dree, a man of remarkable mind, full of energy and determination; Lewis Myers, a Gerregy and determination; Lewis Myers, a German, of great mental power and wonderful perseverance. At this session Wm. Capers was admitted. The admission of Capers was warmly opposed by Lewis Myers on some doctrinal technicality. But Myers's opposition was overruled and Capers brought to the scanty ranks of the conference an element to price as brilliant mind. ence an eloquent tongue, a brilliant mind and a zealous heart. Dr. Lovick Pierce, ther a mere boy, was present. The campmeeting services were going on at the same time at Liberty, and great interest was manifested. It may be justly claimed that the star of Methodism in Georgia began ts upward course in this same house more than seventy-five years ago, and ideas were born beneath that roof, which strengthening with the years, have carried happiness and mtort to many a fainting heart

Mr. Hutchinson vouches for the truth of it and a musical mouse may now be added to the curiosities of middle Georgia animal nature.

From the Berrien, Ga., News.
The following written by a reader of the The following written by a reader of the News from Nashville, gives an account of the killing of the largest number of rats in four hours we ever heard of. On Saturday last, the 15th inst., at the residence of Mr. J. S. Morris, Mr. Morris and family and Mr. Harrison Hancock and wife, who were visiting there, decided to take a little rat hunt. So about 7 o'clock men, women and children armed themselves with sticks, gigs and other implements necessary to fight the "file-tail" tribe, and went to the barn and commenced moving the forage, when a battle began between Mr. Morris's army and the "file-tails," and continued about four hours; after which they gathered up the dead "file-tails," from the scene of battle and piled them in a half-bushel measure and it was heaped, and the dead bodies numbered 170. This is the roughest on rats I ever heard of.

m the Pike County, Ga., News. Mr. G. F. Thompson, of Monroe county, informs us on Saturday last of having had "a show for us" a few days before which he was prevented from showing on account of some actors having been drowned during the heavy rain the Monday before. He informed us that some weeks before a cat on his place gave birth to a litter of kittens. Soon afterwards he found a nest of young rabbits which he carried home thinking they would beinstantly devoured by the mother cat. Therefore, he was surprised some time afterwards at seeing the old cat lavish as much affection upon them as upon her own off-spring. They adopted themselves to their foster mother as readily and soon little kittens and rabbits gamboled around the premises with a familiarity pleasant to look upon. They grew and thrived together and met a common fate on the 5th inst., perishing in a pool of water under the house into which they had fallen.

Oh, My Back!

That's a common expression and has a world of meaning. How much suffering is summed up in it.

The singular thing about it is, that pain in the back is occasioned by so many things. May be caused by kidney disease, liver complaint, consumption, cold, rheumatism, dyspepsia, overwork, nervous debility, &c.

Whatever the cause, don't neglect it. Something is wrong and needs prompt attention. No medicine has yet been discovered that will so quickly and surely cure such diseases as Brown's Iron Bitters, and it does this by commencing at the foundation, and making the blood pure and rich.

A GREAT SORROW."

The Poessett Tragedy Revived—Freeman, the Murderer of His Daughter, Sane Agals.

Boston, Mass., May 3.—The Po assett tragedy was recalled to public attention to-day by the proceedings in the supreme court at Barnstable. Four years ago Charles H.
Freeman, his wife, and two children lived at Poessett, and the man and wife, who had for Pocassett, and the man and wife, who had for some time been interested in religious matters, became so intensely interested that in A₁ril they became insane. On the night of April 30, or the morning of May 1, under an attack of insanity produced by an intense excitement, upon religious matters, they awoke in the night and went to the soon where were lying the two children. Afroom where were lying the two children. After kneeling down by the bedside of the two children in prayer, the mother took the elder of the children, a daughter, into another room, and the father in a spirit of insanity, and in the delusion under which he was laand in the child which he buried in the heart of the child. He was arrested and brought to jail. He was indicted at the October term. Against Mrs. Freeman, the mother, the jury found no bill, and she was

Freeman was not tried, but Judge Morton, Freeman was not tried, but Judge Morton, upon testimony of Freeman's insanity, committed him to the Danvers asylum until the further order of the court. This was in the May term of 1880. He is now declared sane and was before the court to-day, with coursel and experts, seeking for a release. Dr. Goldsmith, superintendent of the Danvers asylum, said when he first met Freeman, the latter was then physically without a peculiarity. He was quite composed, but he had liarity. He was quite composed, but he had at that time insane delusions of a religious

He believed even then that he was specially He believed even then that he was specially favored by the Lord, from whom he had had a direct revelation. He regarded himself as the Christ of his age, and regarded his appearance at this epoch as an important event in religious history, and in fulfillment of a prophecy. He had no remorse whatever for his act, but sometimes doubted whether he had not been inspired by the devil instead of by the beneficent deity. Later on he began to doubt whether he was really insane or the victim of demoniacal delusion. About a gan to doubt whether he was really insane or the victim of demoniacal delusion. About a year ago he came to the conclusion, especially after watching his fellow patients, that he was or had been insane. Gradually all his delusions left him and he became quite convalescent. At no time since last summer would witness have signed a certificate that he was insane. For ten months he had full liberty of the hospital grounds on parole. There was no need to watch him as an insane man, for he was now fully recover-ed, and the doctor did not believe there was any danger in allowing him to go free. Other ets testified in a similar manner and then experts testified in a similar manner and then Ereeman was put on the stand.

"Four years ago," he said, "I was insane. I never met an insane person prior to May 1, 1879, and considered that the influences from religious beliefs were forced on me by parties the base parties have been insane. I see that which might have been insane. I see my error, and consider it an unfortunate affair."

(Here Freeman broke down, but afterwards continued): "I never prayed for Abraham, never prayed for any one, but have been asked to do so by friends; never shall go to Pocusett again if granted a discharge. I had been asked to be a second to be a discharge. I had been asked to be a second to be shall accept the first honorable position offered me and any that would enable me to support my family. I do not desire to go into the details, as it would impress upon me

Attorney General Sherman then questioned him very sharply. Freeman was not in the least excited and had no appearance of an insane person. He said: "Fifteen months before the terrible act, I had tests and complied with them for the act, and fully believed at the time I was doing God's will; it occurred to me that it was an God's will; it occurred to me that it was an insane act about two years a terwards; pever evaded the law of the land, but thought that I should obey God rather than man, as done by Jonah, Daniel, and others. I have not, in my estimation, been insane for about eleven or twelve months at the least. I have had grief and sorrow in relation to the act, and as I fully knew the results, I should never associate with those persons who hold similar religious views. I realize the great clamity, I was very much overworked; prior to that time I never sleept, and had no appetite; four weeks prior to that time I did not fast, as was represented, but because I could not eat. I could converse on any subject rationally except religion."

More favorable expert testimony was interested and Except reconstants.

More favorable expert testimony was in-troduced, and Freeman's counsel submitted the case witnout argument. Judge Colburn, after a few minutes consideration, declared that the evidence showed that Freeman was from the custody of the superintendent of the lunatic asylum, and the sheriff then took the lunatic asylum, and the sheriff then took him into cusody. The clerk read the indictment found in 1880 against Freeman for the wilful murder of his child, to which Freeman pleaded not guitty.

Freeman's counsel asked for his release, but the court held it had no power to release a murderer on his own recognizance, and Freeman's sent back to juil. A writ of habeas corpus will be applied for at once, and the whole case will be brought before Chief-Justice Morton. Justice Morton.

Moon Made of Green Cheese?

That is one of the things we know very lit-tle about. So also about the man in the moon; we know hardly anything of him. But we do know, that if the man in the moon or any other man, partakes too freely of green cheese or any other indigestible article of diet, he will have dyspepsia and bowel troubles. And we know that the way to get rid of such is to take Perry Davis's Pain Killer.

"Out of fifty persons who are forced by pain to use this ejaculation, on an average forty-nine misapprehend the cause of their trouble. They lay it to a strain, a cold, an excess, a touch of lumbago or theumatism, or something of the sort. All wrong. Such attacks mean that the kidneys are out of order. Perhaps they mean right's disease. Reader, you cannot cure your lame back too soon. Take Hunt's remedy, the great kindey and liver medicine. It is a sovereign medicine and cures all kidney, bladder, liver and urinary complaints magically.

We assert without fear of contradiction that Bailey's Saline Aperient is cheaper and more pleasant than any pills ever made for constipation, torpid liver or sick headache, that it never produces the least unpleasant feeling, and its action more prompt than any pill made. It is a terrible enemy to the pill family, driving them from every fireside. It is so nice, pleasant, cleanly and prompt in action, whether on steamboats, railroads, hotels or at home, that all ladies are delighted.

In 1881 the number of persons killed by tornadoes was 187; last year 369 were killed, and already this year 250 persons have, it is estimated, become victims of destructive winds. This rate of destruction will be apt to lead people in exposed localities to study the most approved precautions of safety. Sergeant Finley, of the signal service, says no retreat is so good in a tornado as a dug-out or outdoor cellar.

There is plenty of it already on the hotter shores of the gulf and in the West Indies, and our coast cannot be too vigilantly guarded. The wer Rio Grande is also receiving attention. Let us hope, too, that the south Atlantic coast will not be neglected

THE rules of the civil service commission have been practically agreed upon. The head of the commission, Mr. Dorman B. Eaton, recently stated that although the new civil service law provides that appointments shall be distributed among the states and territories in proportion to the population, yet the commission does not propose to be bound by the provision, because it is to be carried out "only permit." Present representation is also to be disregarded in determining future appointments, and the geographical question is wholly cast aside as to examinations. Mr. Eaton's view seems simply to be that his will

THEITARIFF ISSUE.

Harper's Weekly and some of the more sensible republican organs are beginning to perceive that the tariff issue-the question of reduction or no reduction of the burdens of taxation in the interest of the people-is likely to be the paramount issue in the next pres idential. With this contingency in view they are endeavoring to console themselves with the belief or the supposition that such an issue will compel a reorganization of the two parties. If these organs had their ordinary wits the democratic party has been reorganizing to meet all the requirements of this issue for several months past. In point of fact, there was very little reorganization needed. The great mass of the American people, the farmers, the producers and the workingmen of the country are thoroughly in sympathy with the movement which has been inaugurated to compel the monopolists to share their subvidies with the people. A few of Semocratic leaders-for instance, Randall and Voorhees-have deceived the organs into believing that there is a section of the democratic party likely to sympathize with the demands of the monopolies. There is also an absurd idea at the north to the effect that the large increase in manufacturing in this section and the establishment of new industrial enterprises in this section have given a new meaning to the doctrine of protection. It is natural, perhaps, that such an idea should exist, but there are no more protectionists at the south now than before. South era cotton mills will feel better protected when they can enter the cheapest markets in search of improved machinery, and the other industrial enterprises, managed with energy and business tact, are able to take care of themselves. Mr. Randall and Vcorhees may feel inclined. when the issue is made, as it certainly will be, to kick out of the democratic traces, and a few of their sympathizers may follow them, but the democratic party can afford part with every man who does not believe in the necessity of reducing taxation in the interests of the people. The vast subsidies which the monopolists receive from the present tariff system are the most burdensome taxes which the people are compelled to pay, and the person or politician who does not believe in a reasonable reduction of these subsidies has place is with the republicans—the party of

The organs need not flatter themselves that any disorganization of the democratic party will take place when these so-called leaders retire. They will not be missed from the democratic ranks. The disorganization that the tariff tax issue will bring about will occur in the republican party. There are hundreds and thousands of republicans in the west and northwest who stand practically with the democrats on this issue, and who, with all other issues out of the way, will be glad to stand upon the tariff platform of the democratic party. Recently, the New York Herald suggested that the republicans take up Mr. Samuel J. Randall and nominate him for president. A republican correspondent of the same paper declares that this proposition is preposterous, but he suggests that the republicans should take up Mr. Randall and make him the next speaker of the house. The Herald thinks righly of the proposed compromise in the interests of republican harmony, and it suggests that the republicans cast their votes for Mr. Randall for speaker, and then nominate him on their ticket as vice

This suggestion of the Herald is not nearly so humorous as it is intended to be. With his present views in regard to the tariff, Mr Randall is in no sense of the word a representative democrat. He voted to restore the tax on quinine so that the Philadelphia bloodsuckers might rob the poor and the sick, and he voted to double the tax on cotton-ties so that the farmers of the south should be compelled to pay a large proportion of their hard earnings into the pockets of a few Pennsylvania manufacturers.

Mr. Randall is a very clever gentleman, personally and intellectually, and he tries ard to be a good democrat, but his environment is such that he cannot be a good democrat if he would He is a valuable man on the floor but he is not the man for the democrats to make speaker of the next house. He is so far from being the man for the place that his election by democratic votes will be regarded as evidence that the democratic party has concluded to abandon the tariff issue and with it all hope of democratic suc-

and business which place her in the front rank of southern cities and tinge her with a marked degree of "modern civilization." The architecture of the buildings is modern, the manners and customs of her citizens are modern, her numerous and varied industries make a state of affairs far different from that which was known in any southern city a few years ago, and which exists more than three or four not instances in the south to-day. But aside from these characteristics, which belong to Atlanta alone-at least so far as Georgia is concernedthere is one particular in which she has taken a forward step that her sister cities might do well to follow, and that is in providing pleasant and remunerative work for those women and girls who, by force of circumstances or inclination, are called upon to support them selves. It is fair to say that, of the better classes of self-supporting women, Atlanta urnishes employment to a greater perhaps all the number than other Georgia cities combined, and it is a matter of pride to every true hearted Atlantian to see how well the women fill the positions which have been assigned them in the walks of business life. There are ladies in Atlanta who earn a hundred dollars per month-a good salary for a man-and there are a great number who earn between fifty and a hundred. Not a stone's throw from THE CONSTITUTION office a gentle, self-sacrificing us far as good administration of the law will woman works and supports a large family and just as well, and in nunerous places of trust the hand of woman helps to push along the car of commerce There is in Atlanta a family of young ladies whose names should be enrolled high up on honor's scroll. A few years ago their father died. In life he had filled a position of trust and importance. He died, leaving his daughters without a competency. But they possessed a rarer jewel than an inheritance of gold-good sound sense. It is a well estab ished fact that a sensible woman is the most ensible thing in the world. These young ladies, wearing the bloom of beauty on their faces, set about to make honest and honorable livings for themselves and to live with that true spirit of independence which scorns a ife of ease at the expense of those who by the ties of nature might not feel called upon about them they could not fail to see that to support them. It is hardly necessary to say that they were successful in the highest measure. They hold responsible positions, draw good salaries, and every day go to their work with clock-like regularity. They are an honor to their sex, and many less stout hearted would do well to follow their example. And yet they are but types of many others in Atlanta. THERE is no higher evidence of chivalry than the fiery purpose of one or two of our state contempo aries to hold the entire colored race responsible for the mouthings of a few pestiferous negroes. EX-MAYOR PRINCE'S VIEWS. The following extract from a private letter, written by Hon. F. O. Prince, of Boston, to a friend in St. Louis, is published in the Missouri Republican: 'The democratic party should not be content with the present tariff. It is inconsistent with demo. cratic principles and democratic traditions. We annot have actual free trade, because it would then be necessary to support the government by direct taxation which the people would oppose. But we can have and should have a tariff for revenue only, adjusted with strict reference to the public burdens, also with a view (incidentally merely) to foster and encourage home productive industry, so far only as it can be done without producing monopolies as it can be done without producing monopoles, or giving unjust advantages to any. I am willing to protect domestic manufactures if, in so doing, I can protect Americaa labor, but I am opposed to loading the people with taxation for the benefit of a few capitalists. The tariff of the last congress taxes the many for the benefit of the few. It influe sprices. It enchances the cost of living. It gives undue advantages to capital. It fosters moseculate and written from the prepale influirs. opolies, and, wringing from the people y more of their earnings than the cost by more of their earnings than the cost of got ernment ecomically administered can require must necessarily lead to extravagance an corruption. Protection, which was to do so much for our industries, is actually strangling some o them, for it has enhanced so much the cost of man-ufacture in many cases that we cannot compete in foreign markets with the foreign producer, who is not handicapped in the same way. Our manufact not handicapped in the same way. Our manufact-arers need and should have the power of selling their surplus products to the foreign consumer. They can't have this market, of course, if they can not sell as cheaply. We want such a tariff as will emable them to attain this result.

"The democratic party must meet and settle this great question in the next congress, because it will have the power to do so. If, through fear or other receives it reglecter or increase its certification in the

If, through fear or other reasons, it neglects or ignores its plain duty in the premises, the people will believe it lacks capacity for government. You mistake the temper of our democracy if you think it will be content with a shadow when it needs a substance; that it will be satisfied with a stone when it wants broad. I am not a prophet, nor the son of a prophet, but I will wager the biggest apple that has grown since Father Adam and Mother Eve departed from Paradise, that the question of the revision of the tariff will be among the first that will receive the attention of the next congress, and that some radical changes will be made in the present revenue acts. It is probable that the prominent issue in the next presidential election will be that of the tariff, and we must take such position in the matter that the country shall know that we are opposed to unnecessary taxation, to all monopolies, to all unjust advantages and to all inequalities in the public burdens: that we favor the eacouragement of home industries when it can be accomplished without detriment to the general interest and that we dede lens; that we have the can be accomplished without industries when it can be accomplished without detriment to the general interest, and that we de-mande rigid economy in the expenditures of the government, so that there shall be no excuse for ex-

GEORGIA AND SOUTH CAROLINA

Whenever there is occasion to refer to the wor erful industrial progress of the south, Georgia is nvariably selected as the illustration. No other outhern state has received so much gratuitous advertising, and few of them, it must be admitted, ave deserved half the praise. All this doubtless is gratifying to our modest neigh bors beyond the avannah; but while we would not detract any thing from their well-earned renown, it is high ime the country should know that South Carolina is beening nace with Georgia in the race of material development. Considering our opportunities, the rogress which has been made in South Carolina since the war has been marvellous. During the last census decade, from 1870 to 1880, the advance of this state was almost incredible.

Let us see how we compare with our prosperon eighbors in the money value of real estate: In 870 the value of farms in Georgia was $94 554 468 In 1880 the value of farms was $111,910,540. During the decade between 1870 and 1880 the farm propert of Georgia had increased in value to the amount o $17,351,072. According to the census of 1870 the value of farms in South Carolina was $44,808,763 In 1880 the value of farms was $68,677,482. So that during the decade the farm property of South Caroina had increased in value $23,868,719. The lina had increased in value $23,868,719. The increase in value of farms in this state was, therefore, $6,517,647 in excess of the increase in the value of similar property in Georgia. It is a notable fact that the figures given represent the advance made by Georgia during an entire decade of good government. In South Carolina, during six years of the period embraced within the decade, the state was under the control of a band of robbers, and there was general business demoralization and industrial despair. It must be admitted that Georgia has done well; but South Carolina, judged by the greatly enhanced value of her farm property during the period named, has done a great deal better.

In the line of manufactures the progress of South Carolina has been equally as encouraging. During the decade named there was an increase of 494 manufacturing establishments in this state as compared with a decrease of 243 distablishments in Georgia. The increase of 243 distablishments in Georgia. The increase of 85,742,285 in Georgia. The number of hands employed in the manufactories had increased 13,9% in South Carolina as compared with an increase of 7,004 hands in Georgia. The increase in the amount of wages paid was $1,292,374 in South Carolina, as against an increase of $12,164 in Georgia. The value of materials used in South Carolina had increased $4,029,802, as against an increase of $5,500,208 in Georgia. The increase in value of manufactured products in Georgia was $5,244,833, as against $6,889,027 in south Carolina. It must again be remembered that during this period the government of Georgia was in the hands of her own people, while for the greater part of the time there was little security for capital in South Carolina, and a rate of taxation that amounted almost to confiscation. It will be seen that in manufacturing enterprise Georgia has little fany advantage over "poor secuth Carolina" in manufacturing enterprise Georgia has little fany advantage over "poor secuth Carolina". etter. The rivalry between the two states since the taking of the census has been spicited, and it is gratifying to know that South Carolina is forging steadily ahead. Last year the increase in our corn crop was 110 per cent in Georgia. The increase of the yield of 1881, as against a gain of 33 per cent in Georgia. The increase of the yield of the ost crop in Georgia was double that of 1881, while in South Carolina the increase amounted to 170 per cent. And so the comparison runs through nearly the entire range of agricultural operations. We rejoice at the fact that Georgia is a thriving state. But we want the world to know that South Carolina is fully abreast of her big stater in the race of progress and means to take the lead Frobably the latter would please them best, but as yet they have not been gratified. Mr. McDonald is a man of large shifty possessing as many statement. like qualities that he certainly cannot be ignored in presidential calculations. He has never shown a pushing spirit on his own account. Had he done so in 1830—had he been as ready to sacrifice the interest of his principal to his own interest as Garfield was, he, too, might have been the candidate, and very likely the successful candidate, of a great party for the presidency. But he rejected allovertures of a personal nature because he appeared at the convention in the interest of Mr. Hendricks, and he was unfinchingly loyal to that trust. 'he convention will probably not be held for a year yet, and many things may happen before that time, but the nervousness shown by the republican press when Mr. McDonald's name is discussed is significant as indicating that it subtends a large angle of interest in the public mind.

From the Cartersville Free Press. What we of the south should most desire is, that we should teach the negro and inspire him with the confidence that we are his friends, and only rue friends, and that the pecuniary interests of the two races are so interlinked, that neither can afford to ignore those of the other. That the negro knews little of self-government is an indisputable fact. little of self-government is an indisputable fact. The same truth applies to thousands of white people born and reared in our good old state of Georgia. The disfranchisement of either race of th's class would redden many a battle field with the blood of our people. To colonize him would consume more of the treasure of the white people than they would submit to. The true policy, therefore, is to make the best citizens we can of the negro; give him justice as our people will always do; educate him to understand that the prosperity of the dominant race is the promotion of his own welfare. For centuries, if not for all time, the negro in this country will have to occupy, as a people, an humble position in life; but at the same time it is due to them, as our former slaves, to do all we can to promote their welfare, and prosperity and advancement. Throw no stone in the way of his moral and mental developments.

The main question as to the negro is his educa The main question as to the negro is his educa-tion—his moral and mental education. Whether the average morality or mentality of the black race can ever be made to equal that of the white is questioned by many, but the evidences are not wanting to indicate that the negro, if left as he is, may in time bring the two averages much nearer to each other than they stand at present. Whether the ratio of increase of the blacks in point of numeach other than they stand at present. Whether the ratio of increase of the blacks in point of numbers is likely to be as great as some would claim or not, the negroes are sufficiently numerous to require the chief attention of our police, our county and local officers and criminal tribunals. The only hope of making the negro law-abiding and industrious is to teach him to respect himself.

This may be an experiment, and it may fail, but it will have to be made, and the sooner it is attempted and decided the better. The greatest need is teachers of his own race. There are funds available for the creation of such, and other funds donated for educating the negroes might be similarly applied.

They found the members of the rate committee kind and attentive and willing to do something towards granting Augusta what was desired. They found considerable difference of opinion as to the most available means of accomplishing this end, as each member of the rate committee had local interests which he seemed anxious to protect. The discussion of this question by the rate committee lasted from Thursday morning till Friday near midnight, when a result was reached which placed us on a much better footing as compared with coast points. The difference in favor of the coast was 19c per 100 on meats, and 10c per 10 on flour and grain. According to the new rates this difference is nonly 8c on meat and 45 on grain. The following is a comparative statement of rates on lettered classes to Augusta:

There is no reason to doubt that the great Seney-Gould syndicate will cross the Mississippi at Memphis. In fact when one studies the map it does not seem possible for Gould to leave out Memphis even temporarily. Vicksburg is too far south to meet the demands of both his western and southwestern railway combinations. The fact that Gould will have a direct line to St. Louis from Memphis on the west side of the river by the Iron Mountain and Kansas City, which will be completed in July, shows the importance Memphis has reached as a railway center. Henceforthallways will seek Memphis. Its destipy is plainly outlined. It is to be in the near future one of the greatest railway centers on this continent and one of the mighti st of cities. THE COTTON MARKET

OONSTITUTION OFFICE, Atlanta, May 4, 1883. New York-The cotton market within the past few days has experienced a general reaction, business has revived and once again the speculative interests have assumed an interesting shape. The prevailing impression is that cotton will continue to advance, and this is having its effects of stimu. lating the demand. Futures during the week have been steadily on the rise, and the close to-day places quotations some 3/4 above the prices of one week ago. To-day the months opened firm, but the feeling subsequently relaxed to some extent and during the day a slight decline was effected. The reaction later in the day brought the close up to opening figures with tone ruling steady. Spot ctive, firm and higher with prospects for still higher prices to follow; middling closed to-day 10%c, against 10 5-16c a week ago. Net receipts for the week ending te-day 48.172

ATLANTA, May 4— since the first of the month trade has been remarkably active. The tendency of retail dealers to hold off until the rebate in tases could be effected has resulted in reducing their stocks very considerably, and the present rush in trade is owing to these facts. Editors Constitution—Your reporter in

EDITORS CONSTITUTION-Your reporter in noticing the arrest of Cobb Howard, this morning, did not get the facts exactly right. On Thursday evening about 5:30 o'clock the usual quiet of buckie, Dairy and Venable streets, in that vicinity of junction, was startied by rapid pistol shots and shouts, a fleeing negro from the corner of Dairy and Venable, through the Harris orchard, and half a dozen pursuing policemen, one shooting point blank at the back of the fleeing negro. He was captured at North Avenue and struck a fearful blaw over the eye, cutting a deep gash, The neighbors all thought he was a murderer or desperate burglar, but the docket at the station house shows he is charged with "drunk, disorderly and using profane language." Is it necessary to kill a man or try to for trying to escape from a charge of drunk and disorderly? Is it necessary to shoot among ladies and babes, and alarm a whole communi y? as was the case in this disgraceful affair, in order to arrest a negro charged with an offense punishable with a nine of $5 and costs? Cobb Howard is a hard working, money-making negro. Ask Rev. Dr. Gwin, "Mr. Whiter, of The Constitutios, Mr. Lowe, of Washington street, and Wrs. Al Deinl, or Mr. A. L. Harris. It is to be hoped that such a disgraceful scene will not again occur in Atlanta.

An Eye Witness.

THE GILLETT FAILURE.

How Fulton Superler Court Greered a Man to Deliver Stock to the Receiver. Several days ago Mr. E. A. Angier, the receiver of Gillett Brothers' stock, appointed Mr. G. W. Gustin, of Bibb county, special agent to receive the goods in possession of G. H. Dixon, of Macon, which goods the creditors of Gillett Brothers claim to be the property of the late firm On application of Mr. Gustin for the goods, Mr. Dixon emphatically refused to give them up, stating that he would turn them over to Mr. Angler and no one else. The action of Mr. Dixon was at once made known to Mr. Angler, who immediately obtained an order from Fulton superior court instructing Mr. Dixon to turn the goods over to Mr. Gustin aton e.or the sheriff of Fulton county would follow on the next, train and arrest him for contempt and he would have to suffer the extent of the law, for refusing to comply with the orders of the court. The order was forwarded Mr. Gustin yesterday morning and as nothing had been heard to the contrary, it is supposed to have had the destred off-eet.

The rebate on the stock of Gillett Bros., within the state, is about $3,500, while that on the goods in Selma, Alabama, is about $1,500. Nothing has yet been done with the goods at Selma, both Elliott, in whose possession they were found, and the creditors claiming the right of them. Notwithstanding the goods found at New Orleans have been sold, a legal fight as 10 the proper owners is now going on. Mr. Angler thinks the business will be closed and a settlement reached by the 25th instant. Mr. John Gillett has made a proposition to the creditors offering to pay them forty cents on the dallar, which proposition has been declined. stating that he would turn them over to Mr. Angier

LIFEIN A CITY.

One Instance Out of Many That Shows How Hard

"Do you remember your article last Tuesday about the accident to Miss Vickie Ragsdale?" asked a young man on Whitehall street of a Constitution "Certainly I remember it."

"That young lady has a very sad history," continued the young man. "She is about eighteen years of age, and as you stated, she is very beautiful. Her beauty is in strong contrast to the trouble which she has known in life. This is a hard world at best, and it is all a man can do to live comfortably in it, but a woman incumbered with a family of children, as her mother is, is lindeed in a pitiab te condition. You stated that I had ended a series of kindly acts for notifying the family that they would have to get some one else to support them. That was a very harsh construction to put upon what I said, Indeed, it was by no means what I meant. It is true that I have loaned the family small sums of money at various times, but it has always been paid back to me-every cent of it They own a farm which has been homesteade d and their intention is to sell it and have the proceeds invested in some place where they can secure work and a support. BICYCLE riding is becoming common in the center of the city as well as on the suburbs. The new macadamized streets are favorable to this pleasant exercise.

The young lady has been forced to quit a position which she held in a Whitehall street store on account of her ill health, and don't know what they are to all will do all that I can, but I expect to leave Atlantain a few days and if they are not more fortunate in the future than they have been in the position with reasonable advantages, would do well in life.

There is a very decided feeling in favor of a market thouse in Atlanta, and it is surprising that such an establishment has not existed here for years. The most prominent men in all classes of trade are decidedly in favor of a central market. Mr. H. F. Emery, one of the leading fish dealers, remarked yesterday that he would be glad if the city councit would close up the fish-skalls as they now exist, even if it forced him out of business. Said he:

"It is impossible to run a fish stand without producing an odor that is at least disagreeable and offensive. My place here is on Peachtree street where thousands of laddes pass daily. Their silks rustle all around my boxes of fish. That should not be the case, but I, with the other dealers, should be in a market house where in inspector could see that nothing stale was offered. It is true that in that situation of affairs unprinciple dealers could not work off stale vegetables, but would not that be best for the public? It would be demanded, and the public would be benefitted."

REPORTER AND A POLICEMAN

They Pass Remarks Upon the Pedestrians—Why is Policeman Prefers the Southside—An Old Man Who is in a Bad Business Which Breaks Up His Rappiness—Real Estate.

Yesterday afternoon at five o'clock a Constitu rion reporter sat on the corner post in front of Wal ter Taylor's drug store. He leaned his back against the red telegraph pole and looked lauguidly at the big pine apples and rosy colored strawberries spread temptingly on the Italian's fruit stand over the way. The reporter felt tired. The air was oppressive and drowsy. A tall policeman clothed in the garb of office (navy blue, $27 per suit), sauntered

"I do not like this side of the railroad," volunteered the peeler.

"Why?" asked the scribe. "Even a policeman is human," was the reply.

"And has an eye for the beauties of the female form divine. In short, more pretty girls are on the other side than are on this, and I love to look a make bystanders' hearts flutter with admiration.

"What is this coming?" asked the policeman, cointing to an affect that was approaching with sort of rock-me-to-sleep-mother swing to his gait. "Bother," replied the scribe. "Don't you know a dude when you see one? Observe how elegantly his clothes fit him. See how short his coat is, and his clothes fit him. See how short his coat is, and how thin his legs are."

"What are they used for?" asked the policeman.
"Purely ornamental, a sort of human bricabrac," was the reply. "It is sad that some of our most beautiful young men should fail so utterly to see what is ennobling. It is a fact," moralized the reporter, "that there is no excellence without great labor, and no usefulness without some industry and work. No man was ever honored who did not work. Take Chief Justice Jackson, who holds the most responsible and honored position in the state. He works. Senator Brown works, General Grant and General Lee and General Sherman worked. Governor Boynton works, Mr. Elias Haiman works, Emory Speer works, Colonel Nat Hammond works, everything and everybody works except the dude and the vagabond. That is why men say it is honorable to work, because work alone can bring honors."

and the vagabond. That is why men say it is non-orable to work, because work abone can bring honors."

"Who is this old man coming down the street?" asked the policeman.

"The old fellow with the careworn face and the rapid stride?"

"Yes."

"Sad, sad old man. I don't know his name, but I know his business. Once ne was young and happy; perhaps he, too, was as beautiful as the dude, and wore a short-tailed coat. He was surrounded by friends. But in an evil hour for him he took a position with Cap Joyner to collect street tax. To-day he is weather-beaten, old, decrepid, friendless and despised. Throughout the wide world there is not a man who will even say good morning to him. Day in and day out he passes hither and thisher, looking up delinquents. Men lie to him, swear at him, regard him as a thief, and fire him out. His heart is callous, I guess, or broken. He seems sad, his life is a burden, and one of these days he will lay himself down and his life will go out. He will be laid away to rest in beautiful Oakland, where the grass will grow green above him, the little birds sing sweetly around the spot, and the miscreants will steal flowers from his cemetery lot. He will, let us hope, then be walking the golden streets of that city where there are no street tax if, fas, to serve."

"How de do?"

"Howdye?"
"How de do?"
"Who is that you spoke to?" asked the police

"Who is that you spoke to?" asked the policeman.

"That blonde young fellow who looks so contented? That is Ed. Callaway. He knows more people than anybody else in the world now that Aleck Stephens is dead. How many does he know? Oh, well, I couldn't say accurately but I guess a million or so Speaking of Callaway reminds me of Jordan. Jordan, you know, also stays at the Kimball where Callaway stays. Well, Jordan is just too esthetic for anything. He actually permits a a rose to blow on the lapped of his coat. He takes a bud, pins it gracefully on, wears it tenderly, and the next morning it is a full blown rose. He calls it a pink yiolet bud. Is not that nice?"

"Lovely. Who is this tall man with the cleanly shaved face?"

"Merciful Scott, don't you know Governor Boyn-

"Novely. "Mo is this tail man with the cleanty shaved face?"
"Merciful Scott, don't you know Governor Boynton? They tell me he would rather be governor of his home with its present fair occupant than to be governor of Georgia without her. He seems happy. I tell you Men are only boys grown tall, Hearts don't change much after all, and it would be a sad day if the sentimental part of life could be taken from us."
"Fatty Harris is a whale," remarked the policeman as the ponderous form passed down the street.

man as the ponderous form passed down the street.
"Yes, he weighs nearly a quarter of a ton, I guess.
Does he ride on the street car for one fare?"
"I suppose so. By the way I see that Pat Lynch now drives a double team and sits in the middle of his buggy. There is nothing like precaution when you are ponderous."
"Did you notice those hacks yesterday carrying out the crewd to the real estate sale?" asked the

you are ponderous."
"Did you notice those hacks yesterday carrying out the crowd to the real estate sale?" asked the reporter.
"Les; did you see the brass band advertising the other sale?"
"Yes. I suppose you mean the fellows that insisted on playing six tunes at the same time.
"It is wonderful what strides the real estate business has made in Atlanta," remarked the reporter.
"A few years ago Colonel Adair's nigger used to stand on the street corners with his little red fieg and ring his bell. Finally some venturesome fellow got out a plat. Then they advertised free rides on the street cars—then they hired big wagons—now they charter special trains, and give big dinners, and have a band of music, and put on more style than a Sunday school pienic. Why, the other day they go out a plat in bronze, because they said the property was glit edge. There is no telling where the thing will end."

The reporter raised himself up, dusted his pants and moved off, and the policeman leaned against the telegraph pole and yawned.

THREE YEARS AFTER.

Shad Finding Their Way Back up the Chattabooche River From the Gulf.

It will be remembered that three years ago this spring Dr. Cary, the fish commissioner of the state, put a great number of baby shad into some Georgia rivers. At the time the doctor stated to some persons who were incredulous of the success of the experiment that the shad presented one of the most curious phenomena to be found in natural history.
When put into the rivers they make their way to the sea and there attain maturity. They never forget the river that was the home of their childhood. So many of them as escape the hungry enemies and other perils that beset their youth are sure to come back in three years to entertain the angler and feed the epicure along the banks of the river where they tarted in business.

back in three years to entertain the angler and feed the epicure along the banks of the river where they started in business.

The doctor was asked the other day how the shad experiment had succeeded He said: "Very well. Three years ago I had a million Connecticut iiver shad put into the Georgia rivers. Other shad were put in, but the peculiar habits of the Connecticut river shad give an opportunity to prove the truth of our theories of their return to the river for which they are intended. The Connecticut river shad will be at a hook. The south Atlantic coast shad will not. They are now catching in the Chatta-hoochee near Columbus and further down fine shad of four or five pounds weight with a hook and line. These are the same fish we put in three years ago, when head and eyes and a filmy tail made up his physical structure."

"Do the people like the carp as well as ever?"

"Oh, yes. The demand for them is very heavy, and many applications came in after it was too late to get them from the National Fish commission. Next season there will, I presume, be a well nigh inexhaustible supply. As soon as the people find out that they can get them easily, fish ponds will be made all over Georgia. I have never heard of any one who was not pleased with carp culture. The other day I sent some carp from my own pond to persons who wanted them for breeding this season. They were eighteen inches long. The care with which these fish are cultivated is as astonishing as the rapidity of their growth and multiplication. The extent and importance of the carp question has not yet come to be fully realized."

Dr. Cary stated that there is a plan on foot for the cooperation of the Georgia and South Carolina fish commissioners. The proposed cooperation will insure more economical and efficient work. Dr. Cary has and full consultation with the Carolina commissioners and has great hopes of the result of the work in both states.

HARP'S HARDSHIPS

rrested for Keeping Bad Company and Sent to the Chaingang to Improve.

Several weeks ago the town of Conyers was thrown into a state of excitement over the peculiar chastisement of W. A. Harp, a newspaper man of that place. It will be remembered that, according to report, he was taken from the house of a negress by several was taken from the house of a legress by several disguised parties and painted black and red, as also was a negro man who was in the habit of frequenting the home of the seme negro woman. After having received this punishment, Harp and the woman soon shook the dust of Conyers from their feet and left for other quarters. Of late much complaint has been made to the police by citizens living near the medical college of a suspicious couple. Ilving in that locality, and Captain Bagby decided to investigate the matter. Accordingly, about 2 o'clock yesterday morning he sought the house and found it. He rapped on the door and asked admittance, which was at first refused, but afterwards granted. White awaiting entrance, however, Captain Bagby heard a considerable fuss as if some one was climbing over a partition. On entering, no one save the woman was to be seen. Casting his eyes upward, he saw a white man disrobed standing on two rafters, and ordered him from his elevated, though awkward position. He descended and was arrested and lodged in the stationhouse for immoral conduct. An investigation of the case yesterday morning before Recorder Glenn developed the fact that the man and woman were the same parties who had furnished so much excitement recently at Conyers. After hearing the evidence a fine of $50 was imposed upon Harp, who, in default of payment, was sent to the county chaingang. disguised parties and painted black and red, as

The election of the May queen created a spirited contest between the admirers of the several little beauties who were voted for. On the final count it was discovered that Miss Sallie Fannie Grant, daughter of Mr. W. D. Grant, had received fortyseven votes, but Miss Carrie Crane, daughter of Mr.
Benjamin E. Crane, was only one vote behind her.
The other votes were divided between Misses Isma Dooly, Bertha Woodford, and Adeline Adair. Miss Sallie Fannie Grant was crowned queen with all due ceremiony, and the other four m ses were her mafds of honor. The queen chose as king, Master Sim Post, and the maids selected partners from the handsome little knights who stood around. The royal pairs then danced a quadrille, when the knights kneeled to the ladies each received for his couriesy the reward of a beautiful button

The refreshment tables, prepared with so many attractions and so pleasantly presided over by the ladies, were well paironized and a neat sum was netted. The ladies of St. Phillip's seem never to tire of work in a good cause, and after all their exertions last night looked as happy as when they began. Their entertainment was well attended and proved a success in every way.

Mr. Longstreet is 16 years of age and is now a student at the North Georgia Agricultural college at Dahlonega, where he stands well in his class. He is a young man of unusually fine physique, with broad, equare shoulders, and is almost a counterpart of his distinguished father, General Longstreet, whose name he bears.
